

HOW TO JOIN: WOOD FOR LIFE

WHAT IS IT?

The Wood for Life (WFL) partnership began developing in 2019 in response to both the increased need for firewood at the Hopi Tribe and Navajo Nation after a reduction of coal availability and the need to scale up restoration projects on national forests. The partnership works towards three main goals: (1) providing resources and a sustainable source of firewood to local tribes through restoration efforts; (2) reducing forest-wide fuels; and (3) fostering and strengthening partner relationships.

HOW TO GET FIREWOOD

- Make contact and/or join the monthly WFL meeting.
- The Forest Service or NFF will announce when wood is available from the project sites.
 - This wood will either be made available for pickup at the sites or will be able to be delivered to a wood bank hub location.
 - The wood may come in varying sizes (from logs to stove-ready firewood).
 - The Forest Service and NFF will attempt to best match their project to your communities' needs and capacity.
- Wood may also be delivered to homes and wood bank hub locations by partner organizations listed below ("Involved Nonprofits to Contact").
- Communities with the capacity may be able to enter into agreements with the Forest Service to further facilitate removal of wood from the forest and delivery to homes (refer to "Entering into Agreements").

TRADITIONAL & CEREMONIAL WOOD

- No single item can cost more than $10,000 and can only cover materials, not labor.

For other funding options contact Sean Etsitty at the NFF.

ENTERING INTO AGREEMENTS

Authorized by the 2018 Farm Bill, 638 Contracts are an option for Tribal governments and Tribally recognized entities to enter into agreements with the Forest Service. The agreement proposals must be drafted and submitted by the Tribal entity to the Forest Service. These agreements would allow Tribal entities to carry out long-term projects on federal land, receive funds for wood processing equipment, hire personnel to assist with wood processing and distribution, and a variety of other firewood related projects. For more information on how to do this, contact Jon Martin, listed in the contacts below.
